I strongly support both the philosophy and content of RM-10811.

The utter simplicity of Morse communication makes entry level experimentation feasible, both technically and financially. Removing the requirement for modest Morse proficiency actually creates a barrier to experimentation and learning.